Description of the coat of arms

The coat of arms of the village of Gostomel is based on the image of a castle on a blue background, as shown in the emblem (the castle is destroyed), crowned by the dome of an Orthodox Church. The castle with the church and ramparts, which was the stronghold of the settlement, is located on a peninsula washed by a symbolic river, and at the same time is in a cradle, the bowstring of which (also symbolizing the runway) extends from a symbolic bird that spreads its wings, the crown of which is a horseshoe - the emblem of the Gostomel glass factory, a symbol of masculine and feminine, a symbol of success. Between the wings of the symbolic bird is the year of Gostomel's foundation: "1494", and above this inscription is the word: "GOSTOMEL". In the lower part of the coat of arms there is a green background - a symbol of the green belt of the village.

The entire composition is placed inside a decorative shield framed by curls, on top of which is a castle tower.

Historical background of the Community and its constituent settlements, including information on local celebrations (such as Village/Settlement/City Day) and the presence of official symbols (coat of arms, anthem, flag):

Gostomel

Gostomel is a settlement in the Bucha District of Kyiv Region, Ukraine. It is the center of the Gostomel settlement territorial Community. It has been designated a Hero City by the Decree of the President of Ukraine No. 111/2022, dated March 6, 2022.

Numerous archaeological findings indicate that the territory of Gostomel was inhabited even before the birth of Christ. The border between the lands of the Polians and the Drevlians ran along the Irpin River. After the formation of Kievan Rus', the border lost its significance and became one of the lines of defense of ancient Kyiv. There are two versions regarding the origin of the name of the modern settlement: one attributes it to a brave defender named Gosta, who died in battle against invaders; the other links it to a landowner, Prince Gostom.

The first written mention dates back to 1494. Grand Duke Alexander of Lithuania granted Gostomel to Prince Ivan Lvovich Glinsky (Dashkovich). In 1509, after the Glinskys betrayed the Muscovites, King Sigismund I granted the estate to Semen (Senko) Poloz. In 1614, Polish King Sigismund III granted Gostomel Magdeburg rights. The village of Gostomel received city rights with the help of its owner, Stanislav Kharlenko, who provided for a certain degree of self-government and allowed two fairs to be held each year.

During the Liberation War led by B. Khmelnytsky, it became a hundred-strong town, and the Gostomel hundred under the command of Centurion Y. Basarenko joined the Kyiv Regiment, as part of which it fought against the Lithuanian troops of Hetman Radziwill, led by Zhdanovich. In 1654, Gostomel was seized by Muscovy. After the signing of the Eternal Peace Treaty in 1686, Russian territory expanded to the Irpin and Stuhna rivers, with the border running near Gostomel. After the conclusion of the Eternal Peace in 1686, Russian territory expanded to the Irpin and Stugna rivers, with the border passing near Gostomel. At the beginning of 1694, a church was built. In July 1768, Ivan Bondarenko's Haidamaks visited the town. In the 17th century, it belonged to S. Kharlenko, who built ramparts and a castle here, and in the second half of the 18th century, it belonged to Colonel S. Paliy. After the second partition of Poland in 1793, Gostomel was within the borders of the Russian Empire. In the second half of the 18th century and the first half of the 19th century, Gostomel belonged to Polish families. Gostomel belonged to Polish families. In 1831, it became the property of F. Berezovsky, who founded a leather factory, a distillery with a stone well, a brewery, and a sugar factory. In 1866, Gostomel became a volost center and began to develop rapidly. As of 1900, the Gostomel volost consisted of 26 settlements, including 1 town, 12 villages, 12 farmsteads, and 1 German colony. The population was 12,261 people (6,083 men and 6,178 women). The main settlement and center of the volost, the town of Gostomel, was located 23 versts from the county town and had a population of 2,602 people and 504 households. It had an Orthodox church, two Jewish prayer houses, a church-parish school, two pharmacies, a pharmacy warehouse, five inns, a commercial bathhouse, two bakeries, two beer halls, 20 shops, a sparkling water factory, two water mills, and three smithies.

In 1912, a glass factory was opened, which is still the largest enterprise in the village.

During the Ukrainian Revolution, the territory of Gostomel became part of the Ukrainian People's Republic, as proclaimed by the Third Universal, within the administrative-territorial unit of Kyiv. During the First Soviet-Ukrainian War, it came under Bolshevik control, but was later de-occupied by Ukrainian authorities during a counteroffensive. With the formation of the Ukrainian State headed by Pavlo Skoropadskyi, it became part of the Kyiv Governorate. During the Second Soviet-Ukrainian War, it finally came under Bolshevik control. During the famine of 1932-33, about 40% of the village's inhabitants died. In 1938, it became an urban-type settlement. During World War II, in July 1941, the front temporarily stabilized along the Irpin River in the Gostomel area, where fierce battles took place. Later, the village was occupied by German troops. Under occupation, an underground organization operated here, collecting weapons, distributing leaflets, destroying the police station, and, together with the partisans, blowing up the bridge over the Irpin River. On November 6, 1943, the village came under Soviet control again as a result of the Red Army offensive. The Nazis took 115 young men and women to Germany for forced labor.

Since 1962, the village has been subordinate to the Irpin City Council. In 1971, the population was 6,000. There was a glass factory, a starch factory, an automobile enterprise, an industrial complex, and the Buchansky state farm, which specialized in vegetables and dairy products and had 3,600 hectares of land. In 1972, the village of Mostyshche was included in the territory of the village of Gostomel.

On May 13, 1990, by decision of the Gostomel Settlement Council, the coat of arms of Gostomel was created, which was used until the adoption of a new one on January 23, 2003. By decision of the Gostomel Settlement Council No. 387-22-VII of April 27, 2017, the official coat of arms of the territorial Community of the settlement of Gostomel was approved.

In May 1995, the Cabinet of Ministers of Ukraine approved a decision to privatize the glass factory and starch factory located in the settlement, and in July of the same year, a decision was approved to privatize the state farm. On December 24, 2019, a water treatment plant was opened in Gostomel.

In 2020, the Gostomel territorial Community was formed.

On February 24, 2022, Russia began attacking the airfield in Gostomel. At about 7:00 a.m., a Russian missile exploded near a civilian residential building in Gostomel. During the fighting for the Gostomel airfield, the Armed Forces of Ukraine shot down three helicopters out of 34, but Russian troops managed to land their troops, and a battle ensued. On the same day, information was received about the capture of Gostomel by the occupiers. During the occupation, the world's largest and most powerful transport aircraft, the AN-225 Mriya, created by the Antonov Design Bureau in Kyiv, was destroyed. However, the Armed Forces of Ukraine used artillery and aviation and announced the clearing of the airport.

On April 1, 2022, the head of the Kyiv Regional Military Administration, Oleksandr Pavliuk, announced that Russian troops had left Gostomel. On April 2, 2022, the Ukrainian Ministry of Defense declared the entire Kyiv region free of Russian troops after Russian forces left the territory.

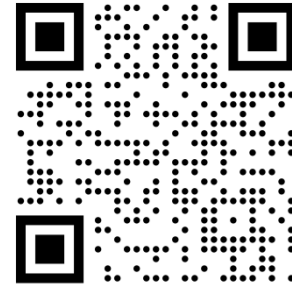

The Holy Protection Church (1890) remains the real gem of the settlement. A monument to soldiers who died during World War II and a memorial sign "Partisan Glory" have been erected. From 1626, Gostomel was home to the prominent 17th-century church and cultural and educational figure, Kyiv Metropolitan (1633-47) Petro Mohyla. In the early 1870s, M. Lysenko recorded a cycle of wedding songs here, which is a classic example of this genre. Among the notable natives of the village are historian V. Verstyuk and film actors A. and O. Mateshko.

Gostomel has its own symbols: the coat of arms is a horseshoe on a shield, symbolizing prosperity and happiness, as well as a golden cross, symbolizing faith; the flag is a rectangular cloth with the coat of arms in the center, colors green and blue, symbolizing nature, fertility, and life.

Traditionally, Gostomel Village Day is celebrated on the feast of the Intercession of the Holy Virgin Mary - October 14. After 2022, the holiday will have a patriotic and memorial character - with commemorations of the fallen, charity fairs, exhibitions, and concerts.

Gorenka

The history of the village dates back to ancient times. The first mentions of the village of Horenka appeared in the second half of the 18th century. Already in 1768-1770, the forests near the village of Horenka were home to Haidamaks, Cossacks who had fled from the Zaporizhzhia Sich, destroyed by Catherine II. Apparently, the modern village was founded by forest guards who were stationed where the school now stands, at the intersection of T. Shevchenko and Kyivska Streets. A historical document dated October 24, 1786 mentions the Gorenka farmstead, which consisted of eight houses inhabited by 34 people.

There is a river with the same name that flows from Pushcha-Vodytsia through the village and into the Irpin River.

The first description of Horenka as a settlement is found in the publications of L. Pokhilevich. According to this description, the road through the forest that connected Horenka and Moshchun was long called the Pylianska Road (Pyliya is a small sawmill). Gorenka was also called Papirnya, because in the 18th century, there was a paper factory of the Kyiv Academy of the Brotherhood Monastery on its territory in the direction of Mostyshche, and in ancient times - Predka, it can only be assumed that it comes from the first "ancestor" who settled here. The population ran their small farms. In addition, they fished and engaged in industry (cutting and harvesting timber, transporting it to Kyiv, carting, burning charcoal, extracting pine resin, etc.)

Around the village, there were isolated estates of serfs who had fled from Irpin, escaping from cruel and oppressive landlords. On this bank of the Irpin River, they became state serfs, who were subject to fewer duties than those on the landowners' lands. On the other side of the village, townspeople (residents of Kyiv) settled. According to legend, isolated serf dwellings were located on Kyivska Street (west of the school, in Pylypivshchyna). Townspeople settled closer to the city, around where Dachna Street, Kirova Street (now Miru Street), and Kyivska Street begin. This area was once called Miskivtsi, and the street was known as Miskivska.

Almost all servants had the surname Maznychenko (from the word maznytsia, which was the name of a vessel in which tar was kept for lubricating wheels). The residents of Mishchanska Street had the surnames Vyshnevsky, Kotsubinsky, and Sheynich. The eastern part of the village was called Sapsai, and the residents of this area had the surnames Sapsai and Kuznets. The surname Sapsai comes from the name of the steppe eagle "sapsan." Perhaps settlers and fugitives from the steppe regions settled here.

Materials were found in the archives of the Mezhygorsk Monastery indicating that soldiers for Peter the Great's army were recruited from the village's forest workers' artels. They took an oath at the monastery and then participated in the Battle of Poltava. The remains of redoubts near the former villages of Mostyshche, Gorenka, and the Gnily Lis tract remind descendants of the joint struggle against Napoleon's troops. Perhaps this is why the westernmost part of the village is called Kutuzivka by local residents. In general, the village of Gorenka has seen many things in its lifetime: Polish nobility and wealthy monks from the Dominican monastery who ruled here for centuries. But it also saw folk avengers - the Haidamaks, who took lawful revenge on the oppressors of the people.

When Catherine II confiscated the monastery lands, Gorenka, with its 276 dessiatines of land, large ponds, and mills, was gifted to V. Kochubei by the empress. He sold this estate in 1800 to the former Kyiv mayor Mykhailo Grygorenko, and his heirs sold the village to the Kyiv merchant Petro Astakhov, who built a brick factory on the pottery clay deposits between Mostyshche and Gorenka to sell bricks in Kyiv.

Later, the Gorenka estate passed into the hands of merchant Fedir Piddubny, and then to the last landowner, Konstantin Goldfarb.

Today, the area where Goldfarb's property was located is called Kostyantynivka.

In pre-revolutionary times, the inhabitants of the village were not a single entity. The townspeople were connected to the city council of Kyiv, which was located on the territory of the present-day Lviv Square, while the former serf estates had their own separate Community and administration.

According to L. Pokhilevich, during its 100 years of existence (from its inception to 1861), there was no significant population growth in Horenka, and the village remained in its original state. Thus, in 1861, there were more than 20 households with a population of 189 people in the settlement, and according to data from 1887, there were 364.

After the peasant reform of 1861, the working conditions of the peasants of Gorenka changed significantly. Former serfs received small land plots, which together amounted to 200 hectares in the village, for which they paid annual redemption payments.

In 1900, construction began on the Pushcha-Vodytsia resort and cottage settlement. At that time, Kyiv was connected to Pushcha-Vodytsia by a railway line built in 1904, which was initially served by a horse-drawn tram and later by a tram. The tram line connected Pushcha-Vodytsia and Horenka with Podil. The second tram line was built in 1908-1909.

During the construction of the sanatorium and resort buildings and dachas, there was a shortage of skilled workers, so the residents of Horenka took an active part in the construction.

From that time on, agriculture in Gorenka began to take on a different character: the peasants tried to cultivate as much land as possible (their own or rented), growing vegetables and berries (mainly strawberries, for which the natural and climatic conditions here proved to be very favorable).

Agricultural products were sold in Kyiv and to local vacationers.

The village was developing.

In 1914, it already had 98 households with a population of about 810 people.

In 1920, Soviet power was established in Gorenka, and a village council was created.

In 1923, it was incorporated into the Kyiv region while retaining its independent status.

In 1928, the Proletarian Pravda collective farm was organized, with S. Maznichenko elected as its first chairman.

In 1935, the collective farm was electrified. Electric milking was introduced on farms. The successes of the dairy industry began to be renowned far beyond the district and region.

In 1951, the smaller collective farms of the neighboring villages of Mostyshcha and Moschun merged with the Goren collective farm into one called "Druzhba." It was a powerful farm.

In 1959, 21 state farms were created on the basis of 35 suburban collective farms in Kyiv, including the Buchansky state farm, to which the Gorenka collective farm was attached as a second branch of the Buchansky state farm. It specialized in the production of milk and vegetables.

Along with agriculture, industry also developed in Gorenka. In the postwar years, workshops of the Kyiv Experimental Furniture Factory began operating in the village. The workshop of the Kyiv Furniture Factory "Polymer" specialized in the production of capron heels and car parts. There was also a workshop for household goods, an oil plant, and near the village, a reinforced concrete products plant belonging to the Kyiv Tram TRust.

In 1945, a haberdashery workshop of the Kyiv factory was located on Kyivska Street, which mainly produced shopping bags.

In 1956, a grocery store and a household goods store were built in Horenka.

Since 1964, the number of residents in Horenka has increased significantly.

In 1970, the village began to be connected to the gas supply.

In 2000, the Buchansky agricultural complex was reformed into four farms. The Novy Shlyakh (New Way) association was organized on the basis of the second division.

Gorenka, located in close proximity to Kyiv, was deliberately targeted and destroyed by Russian forces, including through the use of Grad rockets. The village came under fire on the very first day of the full-scale Russian invasion of Ukraine, resulting in significant destruction caused by the occupiers. Residents who were unable to evacuate to safer areas sought shelter in basements to escape the shelling. The population endured extreme conditions, surviving without electricity, gas, or a centralized water supply. In response, local volunteers independently organized a humanitarian center in the village, providing food and medicine. Those who were able collected aid packages themselves, while volunteers and civil defense fighters delivered them to others using their own vehicles.

There was no official evacuation from Horenka. Volunteers also evacuated people under shelling. Eight cars transported up to 50 people per day. About 1,000 people were rescued. One of the volunteers, Yana Mykhidenko, was killed by a sniper shot.

The official symbols of the village of Gorenka have not yet been approved, but the Gostomel Community is considering the possibility of creating a coat of arms and flag that would reflect the heroic history of the village, its nature, and its modern struggle for freedom.

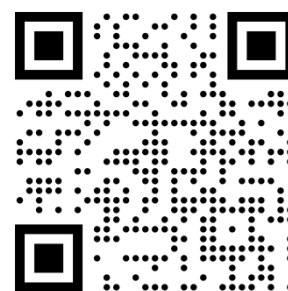

Traditionally, Gorenka Village Day is celebrated on September 21.

Ozera is a village that is part of the Gostomel settlement Community in the Bucha district of the Kyiv region.

According to Lavrentiy Pokhilevych, the village got its name from the large number of lakes that used to surround it but later became swamps.

Ozera

According to folk tales, the settlement of Ozera existed here as far back as the times of Kievan Rus'. A church stood in the village but was destroyed by the Mongol-Tatars in 1240, and its bells were later transferred to the Mezhyhirya Monastery. However, the village did not disappear. After the Tatar invasion, four households remained and rebuilt a new Ozera on the ashes of the old one. The village grew over time. The first mention of its population dates back to 1834 - at that time, there were 22 households and 188 inhabitants in the village.

As of 1900, the village was part of the Gostomel volost of the Kyiv district of the Kyiv province and consisted of 99 households with 533 inhabitants (273 men and 260 women). The village had a school, a smithy, a grocery store, and a fire department consisting of four barrels, three hooks, and two ladders.

During the Russian Empire, there was no church in the village, and the residents belonged to the parish of the Pokrovska Church in the town of Gostomel.

Before the revolution, there was a one-room church-parish school in the village, which was opened in 1897. In July 1924, literacy courses were organized in the village to eliminate illiteracy among the adult population. In 1926, a three-year labor school operated in Ozery. In 1928, the village already had a four-year school. In 1932, another school building was constructed. In 1968, a new eight-year school was built. In 1973, another building was added to the school. In 1990, the construction of a kindergarten for 50 children was completed.

In 1924, there were 200 households and 923 people living in Ozery. The peasants had 1,652 dessiatines of land at their disposal, of which 52 dessiatines were garden plots, 1,300 were arable land, and 300 were hayfields. In 1930, a collective farming association was established in the village. During the collectivization period, an agricultural enterprise, a state farm, was established on the Ozery lands outside the village.

During the dispossession of landowners in Ozery, a large number of peasants were repressed. According to local accounts, in February 1930, more than 100 people from 18 families were repressed in the village of Ozery.

A building confiscated during the dispossession was used as a medical center. Until 1962, the village also had a maternity ward in a separate room at the medical center.

From the end of 1942 until the end of the occupation, a German unit was stationed in Ozery. Ozery was liberated on November 6, 1943. The victory came at a high price for the residents of Ozery. 117 men died on the fronts of World War II.

The Ozery village library was founded in 1946. In 2007, the library was given new modern premises in the village council building.

In 1954, the Ozery village council was liquidated, and Ozery was annexed to the Blystavitsa village council. It was not until 1993 that a village council was re-established in Ozery.

In 1965, a new club was built in the village, and many different clubs were created under it.

The post office in Ozery was opened only in 1973.

In 1974, the Ozery collective farm "Nove Selo" was transformed into one of the brigades of the collective farm "Serp i Molot" in the village of Lubyanka. It was not until 1990 that the Ozery collective farm was re-established, employing 150 collective farmers. In 1996, the collective farm was reorganized into a collective agricultural enterprise.

In 2005, construction of a church began in Ozersky, and in October 2007, Metropolitan Vladimir consecrated the new Church of Archangel Michael.

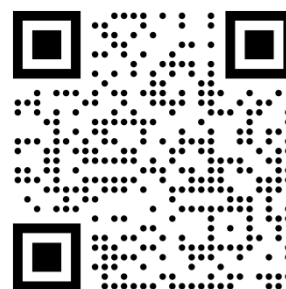

During Russia's full-scale invasion in 2022, the village was under occupation from late February to early April. During the occupation, seven residents of the village were killed, three of whom were shot in the occupation commander's office, two on the street, and two more died as a result of artillery shelling. Russian invaders looted the local population, taking personal belongings from people's homes.

The official symbols of the village of Ozery have not yet been approved, but work is underway to create a coat of arms and flag that would reflect the natural wealth, historical heritage, and heroism of the village's residents.

The patron saint's day in Ozery is November 21, the day of St. Michael the Archangel.

Moschun

Moschun is a village in Ukraine, in the Bucha district of the Kyiv region. It is part of the Gostomel settlement territorial Community. Historically, the village was called Pylnia, as the local industry was sawing wood. There are still several characteristic sawmills in the village, fenced off by high fences made of long wooden planks of irregular shape. The village got its modern name from the word "mosty" (to bridge), because bridges were built across the swamps in its vicinity.

As of 1886, the village had a population of 203 people, of whom only 43 had land holdings with a total area of 298 dessiatines.

It is mentioned in Bohdan Khmelnytsky's universal letter of March 21, 1656, according to which, together with the town of Vyshhorod and the village of Petrivtsi, it was donated to the Mezhygorsk Monastery.

The Battle of Moshchun was one of the fiercest battles during the defense of Kyiv, which lasted from March 5 to 21, 2022, in the initial phase of the Russian invasion of Ukraine for control of the village of Moshchun and its surroundings.

Moshchun was a strategically important position for the Russian occupation forces, as capturing it would allow them to advance on Kyiv. Russia used trained troops and a significant amount of equipment to capture Moshchun. The Battle of Moshchun was one of the most important battles during the defense of Kyiv in March 2022.

After Russian troops landed at Gostomel Airport, the main forces of the Russian army launched a massive offensive on Kyiv from Belarus through the Chernobyl exclusion zone.

Ukrainian troops, retreating, blew up bridges across the Irpin River in order to hold back the enemy's advance. Shelling and fighting along the river had been going on for several days.

On March 5, after the main forces of the Russian army occupied the Bucha-Gostomel line, units of the 76th Airborne Assault Division and the 98th Airborne Division were sent to force the Irpin River near the village of Moshchun.

On March 5, small forces of Russian special forces occupied the northwestern part of the village. On the morning of March 6, Russian troops began to cross the river with significant forces. At that time, the village was defended by a company of the 72nd Mechanized Brigade. Under pressure, Ukrainian fighters retreated to the center of the village and regrouped. Then special forces armed with anti-tank weapons arrived as reinforcements. Russian artillery fire, mortar shelling, air strikes, attacks from drones and attack helicopters continuously covered the village. Russian electronic warfare systems disrupted communications and disabled Ukrainian drones, while Russian army engineering units built the first crossing over the Irpin River.

At that time, the Russians faced fierce resistance from the Ukrainian army and territorial defense forces in the neighboring town of Irpin and other areas west of the capital. Unable to break through Ukraine's defenses there, the Russian occupation forces decided to focus on advancing to Kyiv via Moshchun.

On March 8, part of the Kozarovychi dam was blown up to force the flow of water from the Kyiv Reservoir to descend into Irpin, against the river's current, and create a natural barrier, effectively limiting Russian troops in the Antonov Airport area's access to Moshchun, which they considered the gateway to Kyiv. The water level in Irpin rose by 1.5-2 meters, making it difficult to cross the river.

On March 11, Russian troops launched a massive assault on Moshchun from all directions. In response, Ukrainian forces deployed reinforcements to defend the village.

In the days that followed, under intense enemy fire—referred to as a “fire wall”—Ukrainian troops gradually retreated to the outskirts of the village. The main Ukrainian forces established defensive positions in the nearby forest.

Between March 15 and 18, Russian troops managed to force most Ukrainian forces to withdraw to the outskirts of Moshchun. However, the commander of the 72nd Mechanized Brigade, Oleksandr Vdovichenko, together with the Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces of Ukraine, Valerii Zaluzhnyi, recognized that a full retreat would open the path to Kyiv. They made the decision to continue defending the village. Following a series of counterattacks, the Armed Forces of Ukraine successfully regained the lost positions. Beginning on March 19, Ukrainian defense forces gradually began dislodging Russian occupiers from Moshchun. Within a few days, Ukrainian units encircled the village from two sides and began targeting enemy crossing points and troop concentrations with heavy artillery. Ultimately, the Ukrainian army drove Russian forces back to the Irpin River.

On March 21, the Armed Forces of Ukraine completely liberated the village of Moschun from Russian invaders.

The enemy deployed skilled troops and all available weaponry against the small village of Moshchun, a strategic location the Russian forces needed to capture to advance toward Kyiv. These included barrel and rocket artillery, mortars, and aviation assets. Despite the challenging circumstances, the Ukrainian army successfully halted the enemy’s massive offensive and subsequently forced Russian troops to retreat to the left bank of the Irpin River. Heavy losses sustained by Russian forces in Moshchun and surrounding settlements ultimately compelled their withdrawal from the Kyiv region.

After the de-occupation in 2023, a memorial called "Angels of Victory" was erected in a pine forest near Moschun, dedicated to the Ukrainian soldiers who died in the battles for the village.

Today, the village of Moschun does not have any official symbols (coat of arms, flag, or anthem), but there are plans to develop unique symbols that will embody the heroic history of the village, particularly the events of 2022.

On the second Sunday of October, Moschun traditionally celebrates Village Day.

Geographical location of the Community

The Gostomel Settlement Territorial Community is located in the northern part of the Kyiv region, in the Bucha district, about 20 km northwest of Kyiv, the regional center and capital of Ukraine. It was formed on June 12, 2020, by amalgamation of the Gostomel Village Council of the Irpin City Council, the Ozerska Village Council of the Borodyansky District, and the Horenka Village Council of the Kyiv-Svyatoshinsky District. The Community is located at the crossroads of important transport routes (Warsaw Highway (M07), Kyiv Ring Road, Kyiv - Chop Highway (M-06)), which provide convenient access to the capital and other settlements of the region and connect Kyiv with other regions of Ukraine and international lines.

The Community borders on the Bucha and Irpin Communities of the Bucha district, the Petrivska Community of the Vyshhorod district, and the city of Kyiv. This location provides the Community with strategic advantages for infrastructure and economic development and investment attraction. The Gostomel Community covers several settlements, including Gostomel as the administrative center, as well as a number of surrounding villages and towns - Gorenka, Moshchun, Ozero - which are important for agriculture and the local economy.

The geographical features of the Community include the presence of forests, water resources such as the Irpin River, and natural areas that provide local residents with opportunities for tourism and outdoor recreation.

PJSC Vetropack Gostomel Glass is a leading Ukrainian glass packaging manufacturer located in the town of Gostomel in the Kyiv region. The plant was founded in 1912 and since 2006 has been part of the Swiss industrial group Vetropack Holding AG, which is one of the leaders in the European glass packaging market.

The plant's main specialization is the production of environmentally friendly glass packaging for food and beverages, including bottles and jars of various shapes and volumes. The plant's products cover a wide range of colors: clear, green, olive and brown glass. Vetropack Gostomel Glass provides glass packaging to both Ukrainian and international manufacturers, working to the highest quality and safety standards.

The company is an important economic and social player in the structure of the Gostomel Community. It provides hundreds of jobs, supports local social projects, and actively implements environmental initiatives, such as recycling glass and improving energy efficiency.

In 2022, during the Russian invasion and active hostilities in Gostomel, the glassworks suffered serious damage. Nevertheless, the company announced its intention to gradually resume production after the situation stabilizes, which demonstrates its resilience and strategic importance for the region.
